How do I politely inform an employer (in writing) that I'm not interested in working for them? The context is that I want to be an independent contractor. I am developing a strong relationship with the company and they have a genuine interest in me. I would like to include details about the relationship, and the things I have done with the company, so I am avoiding the polite way of saying it. A: This answer is inspired by the comments by @Bakuriu and @kubernath. The normal way of saying "I'm not interested in working for you" is something like "Thank you for the offer, but I'm not interested". which is very short, to the point, polite, and that usually gets the attention and doesn't offend the candidate.
