

- In-game user interface and graphical rework - New croquet strokes - Croquet Personality - Online multiplayer - User-friendly interface - Gameplay intuitively explained in video tutorial - Original soundtrack composed by Tom Van Deursen - Multiple social features - Two difficulty levels (easy and medium) - Original dreamy graphics by Ben Innes. Descriptions of the three levels. You play as a croquet player who is searching for a number of golden hoop wickets, which you have to hit with a mallet. You do this to create a ball, and then must hit the ball through the hoop wickets you have created. If you haven't played a croquet game before, it will be easy to understand how the game works. The game is played on one of four game boards. You start at a star at the top left of the board and it is your job to get as many stars as you can. The aim is to get as many stars as possible. When you reach one of the white wickets on the board, a piece of croquet will pop out of the wicket in the form of a ball. You hit the ball with your croquet mallet to knock out the croquet piece. Once you've knocked out a piece, you can create your own ball, which will then be in play for any other players that are able to knock out pieces from the board. When you've knocked out a piece, you can create your own ball, which will then be in play for any other players that are able to knock out pieces from the board. To finish a round, you must pass through all the hoops with a white piece of croquet in front of it. In case you accidentally knock out a piece of croquet during a game, you can play the mallet up to 5 times, and if you hit a piece of croquet 5 times, it will become static. The golden hoop pieces fall down from the sky and they appear in random positions, and they are all static. If you destroy a piece of croquet, you receive 3 stars. If you destroy all pieces of croquet, you win the game. You have to collect stars and click on pieces of croquet to collect them. There are a lot of pieces of croquet, so you
