A jailed Canadian drug lord is bracing for his second hunger strike in a year. Edwin Eugenio Molina-Levy, a 44-year-old Mexican national, has been in a unit at El Paso County Jail for one year after he was extradited from Canada on drug trafficking charges and sentenced to nine years. He has been on a hunger strike since July 14 to protest the conditions of his confinement — which he says is more like solitary confinement and should be considered solitary confinement — and he is asking for transfers to other jails. Molina-Levy said he hopes to remain in the facility until he either dies in prison or the Texas corrections department transfers him to the nearest state prison. Jail spokesman Steve LeBlanc said last week that correctional officers had taken special precautions to ensure Molina-Levy's water supply is sufficient. "He's in the same unit that his mother and brother are in. We're not allowing any media or visitors to his unit. In fact, there's only one inmate allowed in his unit at a time," LeBlanc said. LeBlanc said guards have to get special permission to enter the unit. Molina-Levy was convicted in 2013 in Vancouver for his role in a Mexican drug cartel. He also is facing a separate trial in a California case. He said he hopes to be acquitted. The Canadian court that convicted him awarded Molina-Levy about $1.3 million in restitution in the case. Molina-Levy's mother, Laura Molina, said her son will go through some testing after his latest hunger strike and undergo more court appearances. "He's very weak," she said. Laura Molina said she doesn't think 1c3b36666d

How can I use this variable in Master Page in asp.net It is throwing an error, any alternatives how can I achieve this. A: When you use the element, it is always referring to the current context (the current web application, user profile and site). For example, if you are trying to modify something (such as setting or clearing) in a variable when the user is just a regular visitor, then the element would be useful. When the user is authenticated, you could modify the variable. However, if you want to have this variable available only for some pages or situations, for example, when the user is logged in, you could use the element instead. This way, you would not have to specify the context or the web site where the current user is. For example, the following snippet will be included in any SP page (not necessarily in a user control) where the current user has role "myRole".
