How to enter the world of Elden Ring: You will go to a world with a tragic world map. The bottom screen shows the world map with a pinkish color, the closer it is to the game map, the more places it has. The upper left of the bottom screen shows the men meter, which shows how many places you can ride your mount. The bottom right of the bottom screen shows the four colored circles at the bottom. These show the kinds of enemies you will encounter in each of the color circles. When you enter the circles, the enemies will appear and you can have them attack you. The circle on the left shows the three grey circles. You can ride your mount in these circles, but you can't fight enemies. How to ride and fight: When you enter the circle, you will appear on the world map of the game. You will see an outline of your party. The outline of your party is a little smaller than the map of the game. If you ride close to the outline of your party, it will start to cast shadow. When you enter a circle, the enemies will appear to the right. They will approach to you on your horse until they are close to you. You can use your sword to fight with them. You can ride a horse with a charge effect to the left or right, to your left and right by dragging the mouse. Effect of soil matric potential on the depth distribution of radon concentration in a wide range of field conditions. To construct a database of radon concentrations in the Earth's soil, radon concentration in soil profiles were measured in a wide range of field conditions. Radon concentration in soil was measured at depths from 5 to 30 cm in soil profile at atmospheric pressure at 22 stations in Japan, the United States, and the People's Republic of China. Radon concentration in soil was found to be somewhat dependent on matric potential in many field conditions. The median radon concentration in soil was estimated to be 4.1 pCi/L when soil samples were taken at 3-9 cm depth from three stations in Hokkaido, Japan. It increased with increasing matric potential up to 14 cm depth at an average of 7.3 kPa O.D.A. It exceeded 2 pCi/L at 5 cm depth at an average of 6.7 kPa O.D.A. in the range of field conditions tested in this study. The median concentration of soil gas radon was determined to be 1.74 Bq/L in the same set of soil samples. The average relative difference between soil gas and soil concentration of radon was 7.1%. This finding suggests that the relative difference is almost constant regardless of soil matric potential. Radon concentration in soil decreased drastically from 3 cm depth to 30 cm depth because of adsorption to soil organic materials in the top few cm of soil. // Boost.Geometry (aka GGL, Generic Geometry Library) // Copyright (c) 2007-2012 Barend Gehrels, Amsterdam, the Netherlands. // Copyright (c) 2008-2012 Bruno Lalande, Paris, France. // Copyright (c) 2009-2012 Mateusz Loskot, London, UK. // Parts of Boost.Geometry are redesigned from Geodan's Geographic Library // (geolib/GGL), copyright (c) 1995-2010 Geodan, Amsterdam, the Netherlands.
