I've read a bunch of questions/answers here, but I'm still confused. I have this structure: resources :newsletters get '/newsletters/archive/:slug', to: 'newsletters#archive', as: :newsletter_archive I would like to have the Pretty URLs look like and This is straightforward for what I'm doing with :slug. For the nested route, I'm trying to have this work for both: Something with a slug, and Something without a slug What I'm currently doing: resources :newsletters do collection do get 'archive', to: 'newsletters#archive' end end A: If you're using Rails 5.1.2, then you can use the :as option in combination with :controller and :action. Example: resources :newsletters, as: :newsletters_archive The above gives you nested routes with :newsletters_archive. resources :newsletters This gives you your other routes, without the as: resources :newsletters Note: there's no need for a custom collection unless you're implementing :collection => { :action => :index } routes. of, 484 (1983), "cannot be used to test the validity of a rule's differential classification of the persons within its scope.". [36] This point is emphasized in the Report from the Wisconsin Task Force on the Race Related Inferences in Jury Selection, supra note 9, at 74: "There is strong evidence that 'race' or 'racially motivated' decisions in criminal cases, to the extent they are likely to occur, are made at the front end of the jury selection process, by police and prosecutors."
