Structure-function relationships of the O-acetyl-aminoacyl-tRNA synthetase complex of Escherichia coli. Modification of tRNA by specific O-acetylation catalyzed by Escherichia coli O-acetyl-aminoacyl-tRNA synthetase complex (EAST) involves a highly ordered multistep reaction. The 2.6-A resolution X-ray crystal structure of EAST complexed to tRNA(Sec) (O-acetyl-aminoacyl-tRNA synthetase) with the acetylated adenine in place of the normal cytidine 5'-triphosphate (tRNA 5-prime->3'-exonucleotidyl transferase reaction) shows that the amino acid adenine, the acetyl group, and the acetate ion are close to the tRNA beta- and gamma-phosphates. In addition, the 8,8,2-helical turn region of the tertiary structure of the complex is tilted by approximately 30 degrees compared to the X-ray structure of native tRNA. This results in the alignment of secondary structure elements of EAST's alpha' and beta' with the upper and lower portions of the tRNA(Sec). The structure of EAST complexed to the structurally defined substrate tRNA(Sec) (O-acetyl-aminoacyl-tRNA synthetase) allows accurate prediction of the impact of single nucleotide mutations or amino acid replacements in the modified position 54 of tRNA(Sec). We conclude that the beta-phosphate of adenosine 54 plays a major role in the positioning and the complexation of the amino acid nitrogen with the aminoacyl-adenylate intermediate and that the acetate ion must contribute a pro

To explore the relationship between EEG changes and brain damage in hypertensive encephalopathy (HE). The EEGs of 34 patients suffering HE were recorded and their clinical data recorded. An identification of the cortical index, putamen and thalamus index were calculated and the changes in EEG rhythm and waves were compared. EEG data were collected at the beginning, a course of treatment and 1 month after the treatment. Statistical analysis was performed using SPSS11.0. The differences of cortical and putamen index were statistically significant before, during and after treatment (P 0.05). There was a significant difference between the epileptic rate in various grades of HE. EEG changes of HE are related with brain damage, and then the changes of EEG activity can be used as an objective criterion to evaluate brain damage in HE. This is definitely going in a different direction: more oldschool, more fantasy based, much more min/max-styled. I expect to create a primary character and secondary character(for this day): the binder and the mage. I also expect to focus on side storylines and aisled official content (like other games by FFAG). The side quests alone will be too much, and it's constantly worthwhile to grind and improve your character. We can only imagine the main storyline.
